Who Stole the Tarts?
from Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland

The King and Queen of Hearts were seated on their throne when they arrived, with a great crowd assembled about them—all sorts of little birds and beasts, as well as the whole pack of cards. The Knave was standing before them, in chains, with a soldier on each side to guard him; and near the King was the White Rabbit, with a trumpet in one hand, and a scroll of parchment in the other. In the very middle of the court was a table, with a large dish of tarts upon it; they looked so good that it made Alice quite hungry to look at them. “I wish they’d get the trial done,” she thought, “and hand round the refreshments!” But there seemed to be no chance of this, so she began looking at everything about her, to pass away the time.

Alice had never been in a court of justice before, but she had read about them in books, and she was quite pleased to find that she knew the name of nearly everything there. “That’s the judge,” she said to herself, “because of his great wig.”

The judge, by the way, was the King, and as he wore his crown over the wig, he did not look at all comfortable, and it was certainly not becoming.

Here is an example of “smart” quotation marks (a left-quote and a right-quote).
Here is an example of "straight" quotation marks.
• This is bulleted text.
Words rendered with ligatures (flat five) and without (flat five)
This is proportionally spaced text.
This is text in a monospaced font (Courier).
This is tightly tracked (condensed) text.
This is normally tracked text.
This is loosely tracked (expanded) text.
These letters are kerned: To LV
These letters are not kerned: To LV

This “footer” would appear at the bottom of every page of a multi-page document